

Re: Quickbooks

Source:

<http://www.tech-archive.net/Archive/Windows/microsoft.public.windows.server.sbs/2004-03/5780.html>

From: Jim Behning SBS MVP (jimbehningmvp_at_mindspring.com)

Date: 03/17/04

Date: Wed, 17 Mar 2004 04:08:56 GMT

To expand on Javier's comment. Log on to the workstation as the domain administrator. Right click on My Computer and click on manage. Expand users and groups. Open the Administrators group. Click on add and look in the domain, not the workstation. Maybe a find now but from there you can add users so the user is an administrator just on that machine. Nothing to do with being a domain administrator.

"Javier Gomez [SBS MVP]" <javier_gomez@remove.this.engineer.com> wrote:

>Hi John,

>

>Quickbooks requires Local Administrator Rights (not Domain Admin Rights)..

>this is far less worse because they can only change stuff in their

>computers.

>

>However, there are ways around this. I personally don't deal with QB that >much but you could probably give them restricted user access to those users

>and allow them to have unlimited access to the corresponding registry hives >and folders.

>

>I'm sure somebody will give you a more detailed procedure on how to do this >specifically for QB. If not, then I will try to help you myself.

>

>I don't think you will ever see this on a MS site... because the problem is >that QB programmers don't follow the "proper" programming rules. In fact,

>I'm sure if you call them they will tell you that you need to grant them

>Admin right to run it.

Jim B. SBS MVP

remove the mvp to send email