

Re: Problem adding client

Source:

<http://www.tech-archive.net/Archive/Windows/microsoft.public.windows.server.sbs/2004-03/7641.html>

From: MCTrainer (swb_mct_at_msn.com)

Date: 03/22/04

Date: Mon, 22 Mar 2004 13:46:06 -0600

Is the dns server setting on the Server's adaptor 192.168.0.203. That's how the Server finds itself for querying for Active Directory objects like users and computers.

"Marcus O" <anonymous@discussions.microsoft.com> wrote in message news:11c0101c41043$02087b20$a101280a@phx.gbl...

> Hi!
>
> Here is the story.
>
> Installed a fresh Win 2003 SBS. It finds my D-Link router > and wants to take over DHCP, I deny and it gets ip > 192.168.0.100 and ask me to exclude it from the DHCP.
>
> I don't want to exclude it so I give the server IP
> 192.168.0.203 which is outside the DHCP range for the D-
> Link.
>
> Then I follow the Todo list. "Add Users and Computers", I > give the client computer the name for my laptop, who I > want as a client. Wizard tells me to finish and start > laptop and enter http://[server]/connectcomputer. So ...
>
> Network Config appears on laptop but here the problems > starts. It wants username and password, so i enter it.
> Now the server wants to do two things: 1. "Finding small > business users" and "Finding small business server client > computers". It stops on the first one with the error > message "The list of users and computers could not be > found on the server. Make sure that the small business > server network adapters are configured correctly".
>
> More info:
> 1. I can surf internet from the server.
> 2. I can connect to it with remote desktop.
> 3. I can connect to it via laptops Explorer -> Network > neighborhood -> with the username and password that I microsoft.public.windows.server.sbs: Re: Problem adding client > entered when I followed the Todo list!

>
> So, what is wrong with the network adapter? I have > searched internet and MS site but not found this error > message anywhere! What is wrong?
>
> Thanks for any help and ideas!
>
> Regards,
> /Marcus