

Re: SBS 2003 Default Folders and Security

Source:

<http://www.tech-archive.net/Archive/Windows/microsoft.public.windows.server.sbs/2004-12/0353.html>

From: Steve Flynn (steve_at_nospam-flyntech.co.uk)

Date: 12/01/04

Date: Wed, 1 Dec 2004 14:39:40 -0000

Sounds like you have got disk quotas enabled. Open "My Computer" right click on the disk in question and select properties. Select the quota tab.

>From here you can manage disk quotas on that volume.

Regards

Steve Flynn
MCSE, MCDBA

"shepcon" <shepcon@discussions.microsoft.com> wrote in message news:375B2644-8504-43DB-9916-BBBDE894B6F4@microsoft.com...

>I just performed and in-place upgrade to SBS 2003 Premium from SBS 2000. I > have completed all of the To-DO lists and applied all of the specific SBS > updates. The problem that I'm having is that some of the users cannot > save > to their user's directory or the Company share on the server. When they > attempt to save, they get an error that states that the location is "full" > even though it clearly is not. I have checked the security tabs on the > SBS
> server and these users do have access to these folders and they are > members > of the SBS Power Users group and the other SBS built-in groups. I have > checked the settings for the users that are not experiencing this problem > and > the settings are exact. I have tried removing the security for these > users > folders and then manually adding them back, but it makes no change. If I > add > these users to the Domain Admin group, the problem does go away, but I > cannot > allow this.
>
> I have checked all of the server and workstation log files and they are > clean. The PCs are all Windows XP SP boxes.