

Re: Newbie Question

Source:

<http://www.tech-archive.net/Archive/Windows/microsoft.public.windows.server.sbs/2005-04/msg03199.html>

- From: "Matt Gibson" <mattg@xxxxxxxxxxxxxxxx>
 - Date: Mon, 11 Apr 2005 10:02:49 -0700
-

Yup!

Matt Gibson – GSEC

"Fraggle" <fraggle@xxxxxxxxxxxxxxxx> wrote in message
news:HNx6e.20531\$kr.11909@xxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxx
> So on my router I can forward port 25 on to the SBS with no worries?
> "Matt Gibson" <mattg@xxxxxxxxxxxxxxxx> wrote in message
> <news:e1xk0ErPFHA.2824@xxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxx>
>> Out of the box, Exchange 2003 on SBS 2003 is not an open relay, and is >> quite secure.
>>
>> Use a VPN for the file transfer, and HTTPS/RPC for your outlook, and >> you'll be fine.
>>
>> Matt Gibson – GSEC
>>
>> "Fraggle" <fraggle@xxxxxxxxxxxxxxxx> wrote in message
>> news:9Kv6e.17765\$il.10279@xxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxx
>>> Hi,
>>>
>>> I'm setting up a new installation of SBS 2003 for a group of bods out on >>> the road in different parts of the world who want to share diaries, >>> contacts and files. The server will sit in a hosting centre and the >>> users will gain access via a VPN – there will be no access from the LAN.
>>>
>>> I'm going to use hardware for the VPN side of things. My concerns centre >>> around Exchange and it's security. I don't know a great deal about >>> Exchange – I've never wanted to – an the only places I've used it (Exch >>> 2000) whatever I have done abuse.org always reports it as an open relay >>> so I've used a pop3 connector and pulled mail from an isps catchall >>> account and secured it that way – not exactly elegant but the kit is >>> still running...
>>>
>>> Can anyone give sound advice, hints, tips or pointers for this install >>> and also comment on the sharepoint part of it?
>>>
>>> I've looked on the web and it seems that this sort of thing is not for

Re: Newbie Question

>>> the faint hearted but we've all got to start somewhere :>)

>>>

>>

>>

>

>

.

• References:

◆ Newbie Question

◇ From: Fraggle

◆ Re: Newbie Question

◇ From: Matt Gibson

◆ Re: Newbie Question

◇ From: Fraggle

• Prev by Date: Re: DNS reverse lookup for SBS 2003

• Next by Date: Re: Event Viewer System Warning

• Previous by thread: Re: Newbie Question

• Next by thread: Exchange 5.5 to Exchange 2003

• Index(es):

◆ Date

◆ Thread