

Re: Spurious TermDevServices Event 1111

Source:

<http://www.tech-archive.net/Archive/Windows/microsoft.public.windows.server.sbs/2005-05/msg00034.html>

- From: "C_O" <noemailacceptedhere@xxxxxxxxxxxxxx>
 - Date: Sat, 30 Apr 2005 19:43:07 -0700
-

Thanks, Les, but I rather like the option to use my local printer in the RDP session. It is in fact one of the best features of RDP, and I do tend to use it quite a bit. Surely there must be another way.

-- C

"Les Connor [SBS Community Member - SBS MVP]" <les.connor@xxxxxxxxxxxxxx> wrote in message news:uIcK9WeTFHA.1152@xxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxx

> Hi C,

>

> I don't know about the regedit, but you can prevent the error by deselting
> the option to connect printers in the RDP session.

>

> --

> Les Connor [SBS Community Member - SBS MVP]

> -----

> SBS Rocks !

>

>

> "C_O" <noemailacceptedhere@xxxxxxxxxxxxxx> wrote in message

> news:O4CdnU2GgpPumenfRVn-vg@xxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxx

>> I keep getting this "Critical event" 1111 - Driver ActiveTouch Document

>> Loader required for printer ActiveTouch Document Loader is unknown

>>

>> I know what is causing it, and it is in fact not critical, so I want to be >> able to ignore it. ActiveTouch Document Loader is a pseudo print driver >> used >> by the Webex conferencing software. It is installed on the PC I use to >> administer the SBS via remote desktop, and the "critical event" occurs

>> every >> time I start a remote desktop session.

>>

>> Googling this topic, I found contradictory or what seems like potentially >> risky suggestions. So my question is, how can I configure the event

>> logging

>> to ignore a specific, predictable event? Or, if that is not possible,

Re: Spurious TermDevServices Event 1111

>> configure the SBS Server Performance Report generator to ignore this >> event?
>> If none of that is possible, it appears I should be able to configure
SBS
>> with a dummy .inf entry , the entry being >> Driver ActiveTouch Document Loader = "" >> However, I'm not sure where and how to create this entry safely. I'm >> comfortable editing the registry, but only when I know exactly what it is >> that I'm editing and why.
>>
>> TIA for any good pointers.
>>
>> -- C
>>
>>
>
>

• Follow-Ups:

- ◆ Re: Spurious TermDevServices Event 1111
 ◇ From: Les Connor [SBS Community Member – SBS MVP]
- ◆ Re: Spurious TermDevServices Event 1111
 ◇ From: Frank McCallister SBS MVP

• References:

- ◆ Spurious TermDevServices Event 1111
 ◇ From: C_O
- ◆ Re: Spurious TermDevServices Event 1111
 ◇ From: Les Connor [SBS Community Member – SBS MVP]

- Prev by Date: Re: email address
- Next by Date: Is it possible to have a "normal" IIS.
- Previous by thread: Re: Spurious TermDevServices Event 1111
- Next by thread: Re: Spurious TermDevServices Event 1111
- Index(es):
 - ◆ Date
 - ◆ Thread