

Re: Outlook /exchange cant log in after password change Perhaps Local Workgroup settings remaining from non AD environment

---

Source:

<http://www.tech-archive.net/Archive/Windows/microsoft.public.windows.server.sbs/2005-06/msg03326.html>

---

- From: "Gary Demi" <gdemi@xxxxxxxxxxxxxxxx>
  - Date: Sat, 11 Jun 2005 21:19:42 -0700
-

Some clarifications by original submitter.

SBS 2003 SP1

"Gary Demi" <gdemi@xxxxxxxxxxxxxxxx> wrote in message
news:%23XkSdLwbFHA.2736@xxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxx

- > The boss tried to change his password on his non-admin account, we are not
- > sure what he did before he asked how? but he may have used his admin
- > account and may have used the server management tool (I don't think so)
- > and may have changed his local pw. We told him to use CTRL ALT DEL and
- > change pw.
- >
- > Now a short while after he logs in (XP/SP2 client) he gets a login box
- > 'Connect to servername.domainname.local', the displayed username is
- > servername\user rather than Domainname\user. No matter what we put in this
- > box it doesn't authorize.the logon box keeps coming back , it is
- > apparently related to outlook/exchange logon.
- >
- > We can go to another XP client in the domain and (incomplete here), it
- > works properly with the new password, no login box for Outlook, and it
- > does login correctly to Exchange.

Background>

- > My customer was running W2000 Server (factory installed) on a Dell 1400SC
- > It apparently was configured as a DC.
- >
- > At some point they had a system problem and an reinstalled W2000 server
- > but didn't set up the AD. They then started using workgroup sharing where
- > User names and pw's were defined (and had to match) on both the server and
- > client. They also were sharing some printers and files on clients. This
- > led to an awful mess with permission problems..
- >
- > We than installed SBS2003 Premium (bot not using premium features) and
- > SP1. Our primary focus is to use file and printer sharing, active domain
- > and later Exchange.
- >

Re: Outlook /exchange cant log in after password change Perhaps Local Workgroup settings remaining from non AD environment

- > We have changed the known client network hard drive shares to Shared Full
- > Permission everybody and used the NTFS security tab for access to these
- > shares based on domain group membership.
- >
- >
- > Once my workstations have joined the domain what can/should I do with the
- > workgroup settings . This would include local accounts Can I get rid of
- > all local accounts except an administrator

Re: Outlook /exchange cant log in after password change Perhaps Local Workgroup settings remaining from