Hi,

Thanks for updates.

>From your description, it seems you want to deploy a policy to disable the start menu on clients when logon. You can use the group policy to complete this goal:

You can create a new group policy and only apply the policy to that user on SBS domain, please change the policy setting on the following key as you need:

User configuration->Administrative templates->Start menu and Task bar,

Change the setting as you need then run gpupdate to refresh the policy and logon with that user to see if the policy is applied.

As you refer to the logon script, by default the logon script will disappear from the task menu, if all the command have been finished on logon script, so please check you script to make sure of it.

Thanks for your understanding, if you have any further concerns, please let me know. I am glad to be any further updates. Your satisfaction is our top goal.

Best regards,

Charles Yang (MSFT)
