

Re: new installation and SP1

Source:

<http://www.tech-archive.net/Archive/Windows/microsoft.public.windows.server.sbs/2005-07/msg05594.html>

- From: "Frank McCallister SBS MVP" <anonymous>
 - Date: Sat, 23 Jul 2005 08:47:37 -0500
-

Hi Mark

Yes – The time to do this is on initial installation. Best if you can obtain Slipstreamed media, either from vendor, MSDN download, or other means but otherwise use CD SP1 Install before you put in production. See <http://www.smallbizserver.net/Default.aspx?tabid=236> if you are not using Slipstream media.

--

Frank McCallister SBS MVP
COMPUMAC

"Mark" <Mark@xxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxx> wrote in message
<news:2E70FB28-C310-40A5-B631-16EC312B8C0C@xxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxx>

- > hello
- > I am in the process of installing SBS 2003 and from what I have read so
- > far
- > it seems that SP1 is giving a few problems, so my question is should I
- > bother
- > with SP1 yet?

.

• References:

- ◆ new installation and SP1
◇ From: Mark

- Prev by Date: Re: Supported Hardware Fax for SBS 2003?
- Next by Date: Re: information to restore user mailbox and user data
- Previous by thread: new installation and SP1
- Next by thread: Re: new installation and SP1
- Index(es):
 - ◆ Date
 - ◆ Thread