

Re: email from command prompt

---

Source:

<http://www.tech-archive.net/Archive/Windows/microsoft.public.windows.server.sbs/2005-07/msg06466.html>

---

- From: NewStartup <newstartup@xxxxxxxxxxxxx>
  - Date: Wed, 27 Jul 2005 18:55:50 +0100
-

On Wed, 27 Jul 2005 09:38:16 -0700, Eric wrote:

> I would like to be able to send a log file to my email account so that I do > not have to login remotely to the server to check the status of the service.
> It seems like it should be possible with a special command executable from > the command prompt. I want to create a script/bat file that will email the > .log file to my email address, and then I will schedule it with Scheduled > Tasks for daily monitoring. Anyone know how to do this? THANKS.

Have a look for a program called Blat, not used it for years but it allowed you to send email from the command prompt.

Peter

---

• Follow-Ups:

- ◆ *Re: email from command prompt*
◇ From: Eric

• References:

- ◆ *email from command prompt*
◇ From: Eric

- Prev by Date: *Re: Exchange 2003 – Experiencing long delay before user mailbox is*
- Next by Date: *Re: Can't get External NIC to pick up DHCP address from cable mode*
- Previous by thread: *email from command prompt*
- Next by thread: *Re: email from command prompt*
- Index(es):
  - ◆ *Date*
  - ◆ *Thread*