

Re: RADIUS server setup

Source:

<http://www.tech-archive.net/Archive/Windows/microsoft.public.windows.server.sbs/2005-11/msg00109.html>

- From: Owen Williams <Owen@xxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxx>
 - Date: Wed, 2 Nov 2005 10:15:37 -0500
-

Simon:

The documents I attached to the e-mail you sent me will answer all of your questions.

— Owen

In article <uOh3Yg23FHA.2432@xxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxx>, newbie@xxxxxxxxxxxxx says...

- > Owen,
 - >
 - > I appreciate your offer and sent you an email about the documentation.
 - >
 - > David,
 - >
 - > It's good to know RADIUS is only for authenticating user logins. From the
 - > Linksys WAP page, if I select RADIUS instead of WEP for "wireless security",
 - > I have to enter a Shared Key. I suppose the Shared Key is what it uses to
 - > authenticate against server? Does it mean at this point, I'm sort of
 - > authenticating the WAP on the network? But it really has nothing to do with
 - > securing the radio in the air?
 - >
 - > Being that said, having RADIUS set up can keep un-authorized network nodes
 - > out the LAN?
 - >
 - > Thanks guys for the information,
 - >
 - > Simon
- .

• References:

- ◆ Re: RADIUS server setup
◇ From: Owen Williams

- Prev by Date: Re: RADIUS server setup
- Next by Date: Re: Outlook 2003 Over HTTPS

Re: RADIUS server setup

- Previous by thread: Re: RADIUS server setup
- Next by thread: RE: Client transition from POP to Exch email
- Index(es):
 - ◆ Date
 - ◆ Thread