

Re: MSDN R2 -- WSUS -- Auto Approve Defender Defs?

---

Source:

<http://www.tech-archive.net/Archive/Windows/microsoft.public.windows.server.sbs/2006-08/msg03837.html>

---

- From: "Susan Bradley, CPA aka Ebitz - SBS Rocks [MVP]" <sbradcpa@xxxxxxxxxxxx>
  - Date: Fri, 18 Aug 2006 19:58:02 -0700
-

You have regular WSUS... you will just disable the SBSized WSUS if you do this and make it not do the daily checks.

David Hampson wrote:

Hmmmm, I wonder if I can get to the "regular" WSUS. I thought about that once, but never pursued that idea. I'll look into that later when I get home, headed out for a bit.

Thanks for the idea,

Dave Hampson

"Paul Shapiro" <paul@xxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxx> wrote in message news:eW9o%23MxwGHA.2432@xxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxx

With "regular" WSUS I have Definition Updates included in the Automatic Approvals and they are working correctly. It's under Options, Automatic Approval Options, Approve for Installation, Classifications. I included Critical Updates, Definition Updates, and Security Updates. The Defender definitions are automatically updating.

Paul Shapiro

"David Hampson" <microsoft@xxxxxxxxxxxx> wrote in message news:OI7vBerwGHA.1288@xxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxx

Hello,

I installed R2 when it was first released on MSDN. I'll "upgrade" to the final release once it's confirmed from MS.

Anyways, now that the Defender defs are delivered through Windows Update, I'm having to go in every other day to approve them. Should they be auto-approved, or can I change something to auto-approve them? I have Client Computers set to High -- Approve all security updates, critical updates and Service Packs for installation.

Re: MSDN R2 -- WSUS -- Auto Approve Defender Defs?

If they aren't auto-approvable now, consider this my vote for that. It's a pain to go in every other day and approve them.