I think I've got most of the problems sorted out now. Sorry to keep asking so many questions:(

It appears that mail is being delivered and accepted, but I never see it.

Sendmail trace is:

In the user email addresses I have ttenham@xxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxx and ttenham@xxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxx

The mail seems to be accepted, no rejection but I never see it.

All the above shows is that a local SMTP server on your machine accepted mail. It doesn't show anything about delivery to your SBS server.

Any ideas where to look?

I don't see anything in the mail queue under first administrative groups, servers, ads1, queues.

Is there another place mail might go after being accepted?

From your local machine, probably nowhere, since domain

ads1.intellinet.local probably doesn't exist.

I would simply use a telnet session on port 25 direct to your SBS and try a manual send:

Re: Last question with SBS R2 (I hope)

Re: Last question with SBS R2 (I hope)

telnet <sbs> 25
helo example.com
mail from: test@xxxxxxxxxxx
rcpt to: <user@xxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxx>
data
From: test
To: test
Subject: test
Date: now
<cr>
..

And see if that's accepted. If it is, you can look for it in the SBS Exchange queues, and it should be delivered.
