Hi guys,

I have a laptop on a SBS network, for some reason it keeps randomly dropping the network – I am not entirely sure what is going on, but it seems to keep losing the wireless access key. I have another laptop on the same network which is, however, still connecting fine.

Both laptops are XP, using the same wifi point, and both users have the same permissions level. The key is being assigned locally rather than via any policies – could this be the issue and if so how do I configure to automatically provide the wireless key, as this could resolve quite a few problems!

Ruth
