

Re: WMI – could not create object winmgmts

Source:

<http://www.tech-archive.net/Archive/Windows/microsoft.public.windows.server.scripting/2005-11/msg00494.html>

- From: "Andy" <packy2000@xxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxx>
 - Date: Sat, 19 Nov 2005 05:35:34 -0800
-

slowtalkinjones wrote:

does it work if you set the webpage in question to anonymous access, and then IIS Manager on that pages properties to use the username/password you have created ?

Andy

>
> Hi,
>
> Trying to get WMI via ASP or ASPX to work on a remote W2003 server to > monitor network performance. Have tried simple code in both asp & aspx > but always fails with a message "could not create object of type
> "winmgmts:{impersonationLevel=Impersonate}!\.\root\comv2".
>
> The folder where the asp/aspx page resides is protected and demands a > login/pwd, so I thought the "imppersonate" would take the permissions > of the login – true?
>
> In Computer Management : WMI Control I gave full permissions to this > login/pwd for root/CIMV2.
>
> DCOM for WMI has launch permissions Everyone, and Access Permissions > are allowed for that login/pwd.
>
> The code is the standard:
> strComputer = "."
> strWMIService = "winmgmts:" _
> & "{impersonationLevel=impersonate}!\\" & strComputer &
> "\root\cimv2"
> set objWMIService = Server.CreateObject(strWMIService)
>
> (without the word "set" for the aspx page)
>
> thx

.

- References:

- ◆ WMI – could not create object winmgmts

- ◆ From: slowtalkinjones

- Prev by Date: Re: Setting a default printer for all users?

- Next by Date: Re: Cannot Neither Delete nor Map Drive

- Previous by thread: WMI – could not create object winmgmts

- Next by thread: How to get application name which submitted printer job?

- Index(es):

- ◆ Date

- ◆ Thread