I have recently upgraded to Windows Enterprise Server 2003 with clustering. Can I assume that updates listed for Windows 2003 Server will be appropriate for the enterprise edition? Several updates specifically mention Advanced Server, Datacenter, etc, but not Enterprise edition. I note that issues have been posted to this newsgroup suggesting that updates have caused problems. So I'm a bit nervous about blindly installing anything that comes along – but then have the dilemma of potentially compromised security if I don't apply them! I have been unable to find recommendations on the MS support site so any guidance would be appreciated.
