Greetings,

I am seeking information on how to build a Patch Managment Solution.

I am a consultant who has an agent on all of my clients machines. Currently the agent performs mundane tasks such as defrag and it sends me the event logs daily for me to review. I am trying to find a way to check a remote machine for any critical updates. Better yet, if I could push the updates to the user, that would be even better.

If anyone had any experience in Patch Managment or if anyone knows how I can retrieve information from a machine about what critical updates are needed (and not by the win update site), I would appreciate your time.

Thanks in Advance
