

microsoft.public.windowsupdate: Re: Language preferences for WindowsUpdate?

Re: Language preferences for WindowsUpdate?

Source: <http://www.tech-archive.net/Archive/Windows/microsoft.public.windowsupdate/2004-08/7025.html>

---

From: Kenji Yamamoto [Security MVP] (ethernet\_at\_mvps.org)

Date: 08/30/04

Date: Mon, 30 Aug 2004 23:42:20 +0900

Hi. I am a Security MVP from Japan. Let me help you, if you do not mind.

| Any idea when the new version of WindowsUpdate will start respecting the
| language preferences of Microsoft's own IE browser? The current situation
| with SP2 is sufficiently problematic that I'd like to know EXACTLY what it's
| saying before I do anything rash, such as install the upgrade that is | supposed to fix many of Microsoft's security flaws.

If you are still stuck with this matter, just have a try at:

<http://v5.windowsupdate.microsoft.com/v5consumer/default.aspx?ln=en-us>

Apparently the language code after "ln=" is the key, from other posts in microsoft.public.jp.windowsexp, a newsgroup for Japanese users of Windows XP.

Let us know what happens. ;-)

Regards,

Kenji Yamamoto [MVP]

--

"La maniere la plus profonde de sentir quelque chose est d'en souffrir."

(Gustave Flaubert, 'Carnet')

Kenji Yamamoto, Microsoft MVP (Security; Windows Server Systems), MCP+I, MCSE (TCP/IP, IIS4, IEAK)

TechNet ITPro Security Community: <http://www.microsoft.com/technet/security/community/mvp/default>

Blog [JA]: <http://blogs.sqlpassi.org/yamaken/>

Blog [EN]: <http://msmvps.com/yamaken/>