I just tried to apply the latest critical updates to my Windows 2000 Adv Server and the updates were saved temporarily on my USB drive. When Windows 2000 boots to install the updates, an INACCESSIBLE_BOOT_DEVICE error occurs since the USB driver to access the updates has not been loaded (internal USB not on motherboard). How to I correct the update to NOT put the temporary files on my USB drive and to now remove the status that an update is needed so I can boot.
