Hi, I did what you suggested, but the windows update site says that I have hidden important updates and my computer is at risk. How can I make sure the update is really installed or not? One more thing, when I went to the security at home site and the page identified my operating system, it said It appears you are running xp with sp2. But my operating system is 2000 professional with service pack 4. Is there something wrong with how the update site detects the system I'm using?
