

Re: Genuine Windows ActiveX NOT Listed as Add-On

Source:

<http://www.tech-archive.net/Archive/Windows/microsoft.public.windowsupdate/2006-08/msg00071.html>

- From: "Pete Beach" <petes457@xxxxxxxx>
 - Date: Thu, 27 Jul 2006 12:40:02 -0400
-

Good idea. I think I used this site long time ago and for all I know, it's still installed from way back when. Can you tell me which control in the list is the pcpitstop test control? I can't immediately recognize it.

And how do you delete it from within Manage Add-ons? I can see where you enable/disable but not delete. Do I need to use an ActiveX manager?

"Robin Walker [MVP]" <rdhw@xxxxxxxx> wrote in message news:O85rAdZsGHA.3952@xxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxx

Pete Beach <petes457@xxxxxxxx> wrote:

3. I know that site also (<http://www.pcpitstop.com/testax.asp>) and my browser works perfectly with it. Just tried it again and it works fine. Loading ActiveX and scripting.

If you now delete the ActiveX add-on from your PC (using Manage Add-ons), can your browser still reload it afresh?

—
Robin Walker [MVP Networking]
rdhw@xxxxxxxx