Well I am back up and running with a new install of Vista.

It looks like a great solution but when I ran startup repair from the dvd I received the following message: "Startup repair cannot repair this computer automatically." Sending more info can help Microsoft create solutions.

I also tried system restore—I had five available but each one failed. I tried to boot into safe mode but I seemed to be in a loop that kept telling me to try Startup Repair. (Sigh!!!)

Thanks again for the information I wish I had a better outcome.

Thanks for the advice and I will be more cautious in the future.

Allstarrob Can someone e-mail me specific instructions how to fix problem (delete) ATI PCI Express 3GIO FilterDriver update for Vista that effected my video screen etc.. Much appreciated! send to allstarrob@xxxxxxx

Windows Vista

1. Go to Device Manager (To access device manager, Go to START/CONTROL PANEL/SYSTEM & MAINTENANCE/SYSTEM/DEVICE MANAGER
2. Expand "SYSTEM DEVICES"
3. Find "ATI PCI EXPRESS (3GIO) FILTER DRIVER" and delete it.
4. Reboot
5. Check and make sure "ATI PCI EXPRESS (3GIO) FILTER" has been deleted.
If it has not, restart at step 3.
6. If it has been deleted, Reboot 1 or 2 more times and then your computer should be OK.

I give credit to Superraccoon.

This worked on my computer but I do not guarantee it will work on yours.

Best of luck.
