Yet another example of a Registry cleaner horking Windows! Think your Registry needs "cleaning" or "repairing"? Read <http://aumha.net/viewtopic.php?t=28099> and draw your own conclusions.

If the free support techs can't help you out, you're probably looking at a format & reinstall now.

OK..update....System Restore did nothing to rectify this. I am sure its just this KB, maybe MS will release a new version. Anyways Ive had to hide it for the time being, so Ill keep monitoring whats happening to this.

Hi. I had actually used a Registry cleaner a couple of days ago, but have never had any problems with it...been running it for 6 months. Ill see if I can do a system restore back to that point and retry. Thanks.

Do you use a "Registry cleaner"?

I'd recommend that you open a free support incident about this, Chris.

See links in my previous reply. KB950125 was only released yesterday (24 Jun-08) so we don't really know that much about it here (yet).

Let us know how you make out, please.

Re: Update KB950125 Vista 64 Fails...

Hi. Firstly to gga...that standalone did not work for me.

Secondly to PA Bear.....Vista SP1 was via Windows update. As I say, this was the only one that failed. There were 2 updates for Vista MCE. The first one went OK, the second failed. I restarted and tried again, but still failed. The error code was:

80070643 relating to the Office Source

Engine (OSE)...I dont have Office installed whatsoever, LOL. Hmm, this is wierd.

Thanks for the replys..any other thoughts?
