I thought we'd already covered this?

1. Install (only) SP3 (via Automatic Update, Windows Update, or manually) & reboot twice.
2. Go to Windows Update | Select CUSTOM & scan | Install any critical security updates (only) offered by Windows Update.
3. Install IE7 per instructions in my reply to your earlier thread; reboot twice.
4. Return to Windows Update | Select CUSTOM & scan | Install the Root Certificates update (listed in Optional category).

Tonight I decided it was time to update my new laptop to SP3. It currently is running WinXP Pro SP2. I clicked on the Automatic Update shield and discovered 22 available updates, including SP3 and IE7. My question: Would it be best to uncheck everything but SP3 for now and do the rest after I know for sure that SP3 has been installed?

Thanks much!
