These features were removed from Word as a security precaution. You can point your instructor to this KB article: Application is not available error messages when you try to insert some Web Tools in Word 2002 and Word 2003 at <http://support.microsoft.com/?kbid=886299>

Doing a school project we have to create a web page with word that has a video, scrolling text, and sound. The dilemma: After going to Web Tools, clicking on buttons to add the functions, I get the error message stating that the object was created in some sort of HTML code and to make sure it hasn't been removed. Are there any other ways to add video, sound, and scrolling text, or any way to get the functions to work? I've tried the script editor and no luck there.

Any advice would be very helpful!
