I am still not sure why this happened, but when I turned the printer off and on, filled out the template again and printed everything was ok...weird.

I was filling out a template that I use all the time but today, when I hit print, my newly typed text turns to garbage. It looks like the letters are all typed on top of each other. It seems like a formatting issue because if I copy the the garbage to another doc, it comes up the way I originally typed it. But if I print again...it turns to garbage. Any ideas? And why does it happen on my screen when I print?
