I have copied each individual page into a new document and it still will ask the same question. And again, if I select file, print, scale page "zoom, 8 1/2"X 11", it will give me the same error message. I can print this page from the existing document and from the new "copied" document if I select the text on the page and select "file, print – selected text" it prints perfectly.

This has been driving me crazy. I know how to print the document, but it is not "my" document so that when I send it to the approver I have to send instructions on how to print it. This is NOT satisfactory.

I should mention that this has happened on several other documents when another person has sent a document to the color HP laser jet printer and had this happen, then I tell them to send it to me and it prints perfectly for me.

I am at wits end. Can anyone help me with this problem? Has this occurred to anyone else?

thanks all – you have always been the solution to the "pulling my hair out" crazies!
