I'm just curious, myself. Why is this? Now, personally, I would never save directly to a floppy first because I do not trust them. I always save to my computer first just so I know I have a copy. Floppy disks can be tempermental. Is this why you suggest this to MopMan, or are you saying that you really should not even ever save to a floppy disk from Word? If the latter, that sounds kind of strange to me. Why is that? Why would you not be able to save anything to any drive you want? I am just curious. I don't even use floppy disks anymore.
