If you've discovered a way to keep the cursor from blinking, you need to bottle it and sell it, as that's frequently requested. If the blinking cursor is really what you're talking about, you can set the blink rate in Windows Control Panel | Keyboard. If you're talking about the I-beam mouse pointer, then, no, it never blinks.

My I-beam does not flash and it is very difficult to locate when I have several pages and flipping back and forth. Cannot remember how to change.

Thanks
