I should have replied earlier, as I suspected that might be the problem, but (silly me) I couldn't imagine a template being nothing but wrapped graphics!

Suzanne,
You've done me a great service--and not for the first time I might add.
I checked the indicated boxes--and there was a beautiful Santa and Christmas Tree displayed in my doc.
Thank you very much.

If you don't have "Drawing objects" checked on the Print tab of Tools | Options, then you won't see wrapped graphics or text boxes in Print Preview. And if you don't have "Drawings" checked on the View tab of Tools | Options, you won't see them in Print Layout view, either (and you will never see them in Normal view).

Well, that has been the procedure here. However, the saved documents are still empty.

Re: Downloading Templates

I wonder. Is there some setting in Options, some box that's checked or unchecked, that might be making these pictures invisible—even in Print Preview?

I'm at a loss.

Templates usually open the program, then you save as.

I note that I found the "downloaded" Word document templates in the Temp folder. They are titled and identified as templates, but alas, blank. 'Tis a mystery.

See if emptying your temporary cache makes a difference. In Internet Explorer, tools, Internet Options, delete files.

I've
tried
repeatedly
to download
greeting
card
templates
from the Office
Home
site.
The
chosen
card
displays
on
screen,
I
click
"Download,"
a
small
IE
window
opens (for
second)
and I
read
"Downloading."
I'm
not
asked
which folder

direct
download
to,
and
all
get
is
blank
document.

In
past
I've
successfully
downloaded
templates
this
