

Re: Breaking Up Document

Source:

<http://www.tech-archive.net/Archive/Word/microsoft.public.word.formatting.longdocs/2004-03/0242.html>

From: Jose (reluctantly.munged_at_toavoidspam.com)

Date: 03/10/04

Date: Wed, 10 Mar 2004 17:24:45 GMT

On Tue, 09 Mar 2004 06:18:53 GMT, JT wrote in <news:939f01c4059e$6558b320$a301280a@phx.gbl>:

- > My document is not so long--less than 100 pages, but
- > there are graphics and it has gone over the limit (now it
- > is about 5 mg)for emailing.

You've received several suggestions for sending the file from the perspective of file management. You might also try going at it from the perspective of e-mail management. There is a little-known but high-end e-mail program with the unfortunate name of The Bat! from Ritlabs (www.ritlabs.com). One of its countless features is the ability to break up a message and attachment(s) into smaller pieces for just the situation you described. I assume it works, because it's been available in the program for a long time and I've never seen a question raised about it in the mailing lists, but I've never tried it personally.

FWIW, I think the best solution is uploading it as a Zipped file to a web site and e-mailing a link. But as a second choice I'd investigate the idea of mailing subparts; possibly other mail clients also have the feature described above.