Not sure if I can explain this clearly but I will try. I am doing a newsletter. The first section is in two columns. I set a continuous break at the end so that the columns would be balanced.

My problem is as follows: the first column ends at the end of a paragraph. The second column starts with a new paragraph. When the second column starts the first line is not parallel with the first line of the first column. If I keep the wording continuous from the first column, the second column then starts one line above the first line of the first column.

I hope someone understands this and can help me get both columns aligned at the top.

Thanks for any assistance. I am at a dead end with this one.
