Like many on here, I am using Word 2000 on W98SE, which I'm very happy with. I presume that on the same lines as the W98 policy, Microsoft will eventually withdraw any support for Word 2000. What I want to do is to get now the various updates for Word 2000 (which are of course already applied to mine) and download and save them as files on eg memory stick. Then if in the future I ever need to replace/reformat my hard disk, and restore from my (old) Word 2000 CDs, I can then apply the updates. Can anyone help with a blow-by-blow account for this newbie, on

1) how to download the updates without actually applying them (as they are already applied to the current files.

And then 2) how to actually apply them to a newly copied over (old) CD if/when the time ever comes.

Also, a little request. Could posters always say (preferably in the title) what version of Word they are referring to?

TIA.
