I wonder if this is possible...but is there such a thing as a vb script to place a tree menu in the left hand side of a Word doc ?

I tried using the framed document approach, but I find two pitfalls :

1. The .doc that you call from the TOC page automatically switches to the "view as web page" format, thus altering the document's looks and disposition.

2. I don't find very practical the hyperlink modality of having to press CTRL and left clicking to navigate to another doc, especially for audiences accustomed to handling Word only for writing simple texts. If I remember correctly, Word 2000 links were handled with just a simple click.

Any hints ? Thanks to you all...
